Announcing the 2022 Training Industry Top Training Companies Lists: Learning Management System (LMS)

RALEIGH, N.C. — Aug 18, 2022 — Training Industry today announced its selections for the 2022 Top Training Companies™ lists for the learning management systems (LMS) sector of the corporate learning and development (L&D) market. Training Industry, the leading research and information resource for corporate learning leaders, prepares the Training Industry Top 20 report on critical sectors of the corporate training marketplace to better inform professionals about the best and most innovative providers of training services and technologies.

Due to the convergence of features and the significant overlap of participating companies we have decided to merge our LMS and learning experience platform (LXP) categories this year.

Selection to the 2022 Training Industry Top LMS & LXP Companies lists was based on the following criteria:

- Breadth, quality and advancement of features, capabilities and analytics.
- Industry visibility, innovation and impact in the learning technologies training market.
- Client and user representation.
- Business performance and growth.

“This year’s Top 20 LMS companies are evolving into a one-stop-shop for all learning technology-related needs. With a focus on program management and learner-focused capabilities, these companies are continuously advancing the learning technologies market,” said Jessica Schue, market research analyst at Training Industry, Inc. “Through innovative features such as artificial intelligence (AI), personalization, interactive content, analytics and more, these companies are able to provide learners and learning administrators with a fully equipped platform.”
